

Calvary Chapel Eastside

<http://cceastside.com>

Calvary Chapel Eastside is a growing church in a new, state-of-the-art building located in Bellevue, Washington. But their website was old and very dated, difficult to maintain and was not helping the church attain their goals of becoming a place to worship for more local residents and spreading the gospel through the video ministry.

As a member of the church, Eric was asked to help maintain the old site, which was very disorganized, having grown very haphazardly without a real plan.

Eric helped the church create a new website from the ground up, focusing on the most important goals of the church and designing a site to help achieve those goals.

The end result is a responsive, modern site that looks great on any device, is very easy to maintain, and accomplishes their goal for the video podcast ministry.

Client Testimonial

"When you look at a website, it's got to tell you things quickly and easily, in an attractive way that draws you in. Eric spoke of that and we started to work it out - to get our mission statement formulated and stated, to describe our ministry and what our priorities are. Eric helped us organize our thoughts in cyberspace for people, and now, I love looking at our website. It's so attractive!

The unknown really breeds fear. This whole area of the internet and websites is not my area of expertise. So I wasn't totally comfortable at first since I didn't know where we were going or what we could do. But Eric made it easy. His attitude was always very positive. Eric not only provided the technical expertise, but had the aesthetic designer 'gene' going on, so he was the total package. So that made it easy to trust him. His personality and humbleness just took the fear away."
